About Me

I'm a BE student specializing in Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning in Bangalore. I previously ran a web design agency and am fluent in WordPress and website management. I've worked with PHP scripts and have a growing interest in backend development, alongside a strong passion for web design using tools like Figma.

I'm naturally curious and deeply interested in all areas of computer science, always eager to learn and adapt. I also bring strong communication and leadership skills, having led projects and collaborated across teams effectively.

Outside academics, I play badminton professionally, enjoy working out, and often immerse myself in philosophical classics to broaden my perspective.
